

Artist's statement :

In this age of uncertainty we have lost the privilege to have only one world view. Now every image, idea and truth (may it be ancient or media generated) encompasses its opposite within itself. Thus we live in a state of duality. The perpetual paradox, which reins the outside world, is a feature for the internal self also. Thus all our moves are made not in one – upward way – but in two, opposite, directions – simultaneously. This internal conflict translates in my work, on a formal level, as well as it has its geographical, historical and political connotations.
